that of an original proprietor, but is in accordance with a long-established custom."

It was the site of a bartender who served Berenice Abbott for two and a half years at the beginning of the 1960s (for which she won a Pulitzer Prize).

Roku plans to launch its first set-top box with a Google-powered device on top of Google's Android OS later this year, says a report on Geek.com. Roku's new set-top box will have a 60-inch full-color screen and cost less than $200, the report says, citing a source familiar with the development. It's unclear if this device will be integrated with Google TV, Roku's platform for streaming video. The report notes that Roku has partnered with Google to launch the new set-top box, which is separate from its Roku XS range of TVs. It's
